Maketa Triglava je delo bohinskega slikarja Valentina Hodnika (1896-1935). Glede razporejenosti motivov so bile bohinske gore. Hodnik sveta ni upodabljali samo realistično, temveč tudi kaljivo. Te motive je le danes mogoče videti na razglednicah.

Maketo je postavil v letih 1931-1932. V ta namen so na to mesto nanosili tri tone kamnja, kolikor je sicer teža dveh povprečnih avtomobilov.

V bližini makete Triglava je stal prvi hotel v Bohinju. Zgradili so ga leta 1887 in ga najprej poimenovali Touristen Hotel, kasneje pa Hotel sveti Janez. Zgradila ga je Kranjska industrijska družba. V hotelu je delovala tudi pošta. Med drugo svetovno vojno je bil poškodovan.

This small-scale duplicate of Triglav was made by the painter Valentin Hodnik (1896-1935) from Bohinj, who specialised in the hills and mountains of the area. Hodnik's paintings were not just realistic depictions of the world, but had a humorous undertone, and have remained popular postcard motives till today.

The Triglav duplicate was set up in the period 1931-1932. To erect the model, they brought three tons of stones, i.e. the weight of two cars, to the site.

The first hotel in Bohinj was built near the miniature Triglav by the Carniolan Industrial Company in 1887. The hotel was first called the Touristen Hotel, and later renamed as Hotel sveti Janez (St John's Hotel). The hotel also operated a post office. It was burnt down during World War II.
